

Go deeper into Yoga

Are you happy with your Yoga practice but interested in exploring its deeper, more spiritual dimensions?

Are you seeking one system that combines a holistic, harmonious approach to health, meditation, diet, psychic development, profound levels in your lovemaking and personal relationships, an intellectual understanding of Macrocosmic principles, and a deep connection with the Absolute?

Agama Yoga, a school of Integral Yoga based in the lineage of Indian and Tibetan Tantra, provides a university-level five-year education in Yoga, including Kundalini-based practice founded in chakra and energy awareness, Laya Yoga, and genuine tantric instruction in one modality designed to help the practitioner transform his or her life from the inside out.

Don't miss this exceptional opportunity!

Swami Vivekananda Saraswati, a university-educated engineer, has been teaching Yoga for nearly 25 years. Brilliant and passionate about reviving the authentic path of Yoga, he first explored parapsychology and the science of the mind as a youth, before beginning an intense and extensive education in Yoga three years later. In 1990, he left his native Romania for Copenhagen to found NATHA, now Denmark's largest Yoga school. Eight years later, he journeyed to India to take the Swami order oaths and in Rishikesh opened Agama Yoga, which has since grown into an international school, with branches in Thailand, India, Israel, and Greece.

Swami Vivekananda, who speaks five languages and was once a member of Mensa, has a broad range of expertise, from chiropractic and alternative healing to the teachings of esoteric Christianity and the Kaula Tantra tradition. He also specializes in the transcendent and practical Kashmir Shaivism, a nearly lost study within Yoga.
